

I sent off my imaging to Dr. Henderson and he personally called me on a Saturday to discuss my findings. He said, "I see the problem, we will work on a solution, and don't you worry, I can take care of this." His office called me first thing Monday morning to get me in to see him.

I felt like the weight of the world was lifted off of my shoulders, after having seen numerous physicians, of all types, over the past few years. None of them could provide a definitive diagnosis.

As I approach my upcoming surgery, I am at peace and have no worries, because I know that I am in the best hands.

God has put an amazing, brilliant man on this Earth, who not only understands the complex things that are going on in me, but who is very capable of fixing them.
